rights in Mexico. It becomes now equally apparent that the British Government, though it has ordered two high-powered cruisers to the Mexican coast, places its chief reliance in the good offices of President Wilson's Administration. It became definitely known to-day that Admiral Fletcher's hurried trip to Tuxpam was the result of at least an indirect appeal from Great Britain. Whether Sir William Tyrrell of the British Foreign Office, who is now visiting the indisposed British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, presented the request for protection more directly to the President when he called at the White House on Sunday evening, is still problematical. From some source not yet revealed the British Consul at Tuxpam heard that the American warships there and at Tampico, under the command of Rear Admiral Boush, were planning to send marines ashore to prevent depredations. To the Consul such a course appeared unnecessary and likely to lead to grave complications. He at once wired his fears to Sir Lionel Carden, the British Minister to Mexico, and through the Minister the report was carried to Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American Charge. Mr. O'Shaughnessy's dispatch to the State Department at once drew forth the statement that no landing was contemplated, while Admiral Fletcher was ordered to take his flagship to Tuxpam and inspect the situation in person. Washington Opposed to Foreign Monopoly of Latin American Supply.

Special to The New York Times.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—In the scramble that is going on for oll wells in the regions adjacent to the Panama Canal. Great Britain is showing great commercial activity. Since the adoption of oil fuel in the British Navy every possible effort has been put forth to acquire all the oil to be had in Mexico. the West Indies, and Central America At this time concessions are pending in both Ecuador and Colombia, in which the Pearson syndicate is endeavoring to secure a monopoly. to secure a monopoly.

These oil fields are likely to prove of the greatest importance in the future. They have thus far been only slightly exploited, but there is every indication of a very large supply. With the completion of the Pagana Canal and the general adoption of oil fuel in the mer-chant marine these resources will be-come immensely valuable. Competition in the carrying trade will turn more or less upon the control of oil at points from which it can be cheaply transported to the terminals of the canal.

The Governments of Ecuador and Colombia have both granted the concessions desired by the Pearson Syndicate, but these concessions have yet to be ratified by the Congresses of those countries, and it is understood that the United States has entered the game to block, if possible, the proposed concession of the Colombia oil fields to the British concern. The opposition is said in some quarters to originate with a big American company, which is also trying to get oil supplies in the canal sphere for transportation.

At the State Department the explanation is offered that this Government does not look with complacency upon the acquisition of a monopoly of oil at both terminals of the canal, and the hope is expressed that the Colombian supply may be secured by an American company, or at least by another foreign concern than the Pearson Syndicate, in order that there may be competition, and steamships that need to take on fuel at the canal terminals may have the benefit of it.

WELLSBORO, Penn., Nov. 25.—George C. Bayless of Blinghamton, N. Y., President of the Bayless Pulp Company, and Fred M. Hamlin, Superintendent, were to-day acquitted of involuntary manslaughter before Judge David Cameron and a jury. The indictments were found as the result of the breaking of the Austin dam on Sept. 30, 1911, when eighty lives were lost. The discharge of the defendants was not unexpected. Claims totaling half a million dollars had been filed against the company, and the civil suits brought to collect this amount were recently dropped on the payment of $150,000.

The petition insists that the German Government had no right to boycott the exposition in consequence of an "agreement" with Great Britain. Sir William Ramsay Believes It Has Therapeutic Qualities. Marconi Transatiantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Tim LONDON, Nov. 25 .- Sir William Ramsay, discussing the properties of radium at a meeting of the British Radium Corporation to-day, said there were other substances in the adium ores which had not so far been exploited from a therapeutic point of view. He hoped that polonium, which was perhaps the most easily produced, might prove to possess therapeutic qualities for the treatment of diseases which had hitherto not been treated. Polonium, said Sir William, was omewhat analogous to selenium and tellurium, and also to bismuth, the therapeutic qualities of which had een tested. Those three elements remained in the system for some length of time, and then were excreted, but had practically no therapeutical qualities. Polonium differed from the tirely in that it gave off alpha rays, Polonium differed from them enjust the same as radium did, and he could not help believing that the potency of radium for therapeutic puroses depended upon the alpha rays. Radium could not be administered as medicine to human beings, as it was too expensive, and probably too dangerous, but the three substances he had mentioned were eliminated in about three months, and his impression was that polonium might produce its effect for about that time and then be eliminated.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre left the White House before 8 o'clock, using one of the White House motors, but without revealing to any one where the first days of their honeymoon would be passed. As, however, they laughingly made engagements to meet friends going to the Army and Navy football game next Saturday, it naturally is assumed that they will pass the next few days near that city. It is not believed the motor taking them from the White than Baltimore.

It is reported, however, that very soon they will start on a trip to Europe, returning early in January to Williamstown, Mass., where Mr. Sayre will

Mrs. Sayre's traveling gown was a with which she wore a round hat of Learned Distasteful Facts When Seeking Sulzer Evidence, District Attorney Hears.

MATTER WAS THEN DROPPED

Fear Was That "Big Fellows" Would Be Involved-Fowler Begins His Fight.

Information has rached the District Attorney's office that the whole story of the relations of James K. McGuire, now under indictment for soliciting campaign funds from a corporation, and his brother, George H. McGuire, with the Union Oil Company was in the hands of Tammany Hall investigators as early as last August. Tammany Hall, it was reported, had intended to use the story in the Sulzer impeachment trial to discredit William Sulzer.

uirer was sent from Fourteenth Street to Fillmore Condit, New York representative of the Union Oil Company, to scertain what part William Sulzer ook in the McGuire dealings. The inquirer, it is understood, brought back report which made Tammany Hall rop the matter with great rapidity. This is why the McGuire matter never figured in the Sulzer trial, it was explained. Had the information been used in any way as reflecting on Sulzer it was thought many high Tammany officials would be involved. Tammany Hall, it was said, would have been willing enough to sacrifice the McGuire brothers, but there were big fellows in-

When Arthur B. Chamberlin, the asphalt broker, was on the stand at the John Doe inquiry on Monday he pointed out that Condit's typewritten statement out that Condit's typewritten statement said specifically that James K. McGuire had asked for $5,000 as a "campaign contribution" and that acthing was said about the Democratic Party. The Condit statement, it was asserted later, quoted Chamberlin himself as saying to Condit: "I don't believe the McGuire brothers were ever authorized to make such an offer. I am going to Fourteenth Street to find out about it." Condit goes on record in the statement, it was reported, as saying that Chamberlin did go to Fourteenth Street to find out, and that Chamberlin at that time was a personal friend of Charles F. Murphy and of his nephew, Charles F. Murphy, Jr.

to find out, and that Chamberlin at that time was a personal friend of Charles F. Murphy and of his nephew, Charles F. Murphy, Jr.

When Chamberlin was on the stand the inference was that Condit wrote out his statement about the McGuire negotiations shortly after they occurred; that is, in the Summer of 1912. It appeared yesterday, however, that this formal statement was written last August, long after Chamberlain had left Condit's employ. This was the time when investigators were searching throughout the State for evidence against Sulzer for the impeachment proceedings.

against Sulzer for the impeachment proceedings.

Mr. Condit said yesterday that three weeks before the last election he personally had taken a report of the whole McGuire-Condit incident to the office of Borough President Lewis H. Pounds of Brooklyn, thinking that the story might be used in Mr. Pounds's campaign for election on the Fusion ticket. He left the information in charge of an engineer at the Borough President's office, he said, but it was never used in the campaign. Mr. Condit explained that he was interested in the election of the Fusion ticket.

until next Wednesday. Justice Davis, it is expected, will give his decision shortly after the final argument.

Mr. Littleton obtained from Mr. Clark a summary of the Grand Jury testimony on which Fowler was indicted. This was briefly to the effect that Fowler had extorted $250 from Seneca P. Hull, a contractor of Cortland, in Syracuse in 1911; that Hull made out a check to Norman E. Mack, and that the check was sent to Arthur A. McLean, Treasurer of the Democratic State Committee, at 1 West Thirty-fourth Street; that the check was indorsed by both Mack and McLean, and that it was cashed in the Fourth National Bank of this city.

Basing his argument on this summary Mr. Littleton contended that Fowler should be tried in Onondaga County in which Syracuse is situated, and that the New York County courts had no jurisdiction.

"It will appear from the Grand Jury diction.

"It will appear from the Grand Jury minutes," Mr. Littleton said, "that the contract held by Hull was obtained from the State Highway Deportment in Albany and that Mr. Fowler and others called on Hull to meet him and others in Syracuse in 1911. According to Hull, Fowler admonished him to give a campaign contribution.

called on Hull to meet him and others in Syracuse in 1911. According to Hull, Fowler admonished him to give a campaign contribution.

For the purposes of this argument I will assume that Fowler used the alleged extortionate methods of which he is accused, and obtained a check for $250 which was turned over to Fowler and finally transmitted to Norman E. Mack. Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and deposited in the Fourth National Bank of New York City.

"If these be the facts," proceeded Mr. Littleton, "I contend that we have the right to inspect the Grand Jury minutes and this court has no jurisdiction to try the issue. I have no desire to muddle to complicate the District Attorney's case by seeking to learn what evidence the District Attorney has. But I am entitled to 'shoot on sight' regarding the question of jurisdiction.

Mr. Clark arsued that the circumstances of the case placed the furisdiction in New York County as well as in Onondaga County. He asserted that the money transaction had not been completed until Hull's check passed through the Fourth National Bank and he asserted that both Mack and McLean had indorsed the check in New York County.

Acknowledging that jurisdiction lay in either county he insisted that the District Attorney would oppose vigorously any effort to transfer the responsibility of trying the case. Justice Davis adjourned the proceedings until next wednesday in accordance with the agreement reached between Mr. Clark and Mr. Littleton. According to the information which eached Mr. Whitman's office, an in-

John T. Hettrick Falls to Get Committee to Examine the Books.

Stockholders of the Pulitzer Magazine Company, Inc., in which Walter Pulitzer-pending an action now before the Supreme Court—holds the controlling interest, held a stormy meeting yesterday afternoon in the office of Henry L. That started trouble immediately, and Mr. Hettrick consented to the withdrawal of his name. Then the resolution was put to a vote, the committee proposed being com-asked what copyrights were, and being informed, reached for his hat.

"Well, I don't see that there is anything more that interests me very much," he asserted. "I was asked to come here to see if the stock purchased was worth anything."

Mr. Jones, however, decided to stay and hear the worst. Mr. Glaze in an impassioned speech charged that the company had been demoralized financially, for the present at least, by the actions of Mr. Hettrick, who, he said, had caused to be published in The World and other newspapers stories that Walter Pulitzer's affairs were to be investigated by the Grand Jury. The point had been reached, he said, when the credit of the company was destroyed, and he thought the real question to be considered was whether the company should be continued or dropped.

Mr. Hettrick broke in to ask vehe-

Mr. Glaze, proxy for Walter Pulitzer, voted the Pulitzer lis Briggs, the Old Guard assembled at for Walter Pulitzer, voted the Pulitzer stock against the resolution, and defeated it.

Mr. Glaze apologetically, but none the less firmly, controlled the meeting. First in opposition to the wishes of most of the minority stockholders, as expressed by their vote, he selected Henry L. Ruppert as Chairman. Hettrick, for the minority, made a protest against the legal right of Mr. Glaze to control the meeting with Pulitzer stock, asserting that the Supreme Court had been called upon to determine the suit was pending. Then things warmed upon George W. Jones, representing men in the South who subscribed for about $1,300 of the company's stock, pressed Mr. Glaze for a detailed financial report. Mr. Glaze reviewed first the list tory of the Pulitzer Publishing Company and then that of the Pulitzer Magazine Company. That is all very interesting, I supup.

"That is all very interesting, I suppose," said Mr. Jones, "but what I would like to hear is a statement of the finances." Finally a report of Oct. 31 was read, showing the chief assets of the company to be "copyrights" valued at something like $160,000. Mr. Jones and W. L. Snyder.

Mr. Maxwell produced elaborate data concerning thirty-eight railroads with $1,937 miles of line, showing as a result of their operation in 1913 a gross increase in operating revenues of $78,000,000 above 1910. Nevertheless, after paying operating expenses and taxes these roads suffered a loss of $12,000,000 in operating income. This result was due Operating income. This result was due to an increase in the ratio of operating expenses and taxes to gross operating revenue between 1910 and 1913 of from 72 per cent. despite the fact that large sums of new capital were invested in additions and better-were invested in additions and betterments.

Mr Maxwell directed particular attention to the condition of a special group of twenty-eight railroads, including the Big Four system. Vandalia, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Grand Trunk Western, Grand Rapids, Illinois Central, Chicago & Alton, and Wabash Railroads.

According to Mr. Maxwell many of these railroads would soon be headed toward receivers unless this 5 per cent. increase in freight rates was allowed. The net corporate income of the properties was actually $8,000,000 less than in 1908, although in this five-year period $180,000,000 of new capital was put into them. Statistics submitted by Mr. Maxwell showed that in 1913 only nine of them paid dividends.

Since 1908 the aggregate amount of dividends paid by these twenty-eight roads was $13,238,261 in 1909, $15,285,165 in 1910, $12,960,628 in 1911, $12,100,763 in 1912, and only $10,342,130 in 1913. In 1910 these twenty-eight roads had a balance of $2,343,240 after paying dividends.

Mr. McCain explained that the tariffs affected by the 5 per cent, increase continued the existing differentials on west bound freight from Baltimore and Philadelphia.

The rates between points in Trunk Line territory such as from New York to Syracuse were all advanced 5 per cent, said Mr. McCain. These rates all stood on their own bases, and were not related to other rates. The ex-Lake grain rates from New York to Buffalo as well as the so-called F. O. Commissioner Clements inquired whether any of the tariffs flied carried a proposed increase in State rates.

Mr. Brandeis asked whether the anthracite coal rates were about the only es that were not raised. Mr. Butterthe variations from 5 per cent. in the increase, whether above or below 5 per

Mr. Butterfield interposed to say that the railroads estimated that the 5 per cent. increase would produce about $40,-000,000 or $50,000,000 additional gross to the minority. "To take away from the individual banks at one sweep one-tenth of their cash capital was, in my opinion, a mistake. It was to aggrevate the evil of lack of capital which already existed, and still further reduce the margin of safety for the depositor. And so I have joined in recommending an amendment by which the capital in the regional banks, instead of being supplied by the banks themselves, is to be supplied by the people of the United States."

To Commercial Travelers

WENTY years ago, when Munsey's Magazine struck out on new and popular lines, bounding as it did into a nation-wide circulation, you, the Traveling Men of America, were among the first to recognize its merits and did more than any other body of men to support it and commend it to your friends and acquaintances.

Now, just two decades later, I am giving you another new type of magazine in The Munsey—this time a far bigger and far better magazine than before.

With its full book-length novel, complete in each issue, Munsey's Magazine is preeminently the magazine for you commercial men who have long hours to while away on railway trains and in hotels away from home. So situated, there isn't much satisfaction in reading a fragment of a novel—just a sop. that's all.

But there is a lot of satisfaction in finding in your magazine a full complete novelexactly the kind you would pay $1.50 for in book form. And there is a further satisfaction in the fact that in Munsey's Magazine you will get this novel for 15 cents - get novel and all the other features, illustrated and unillustrated, that go to make up a standard illustrated magazine.

Get the December Munsey and read George Barr McCutcheon's great novel, "Black is White." I strongly recommend it.

Mr. Waldman and Commissioner sophic Irene Loeb, who is a suffragette, had a spirited colloquy at the end of his testimony, in which he stated that since the death of a husband and father removed, "the chief financial and moral prop of the family," the private society should act "in loco parentis." Miss Loeb strongly disagreed with the assertion that a husband was to be assumed to be the "chief moral prop." Mr. Waldman stuck to it that a wife needed the guidance of a father Publicly administered charity was severely criticized by Mr. Waldman, who said that it was impossible to get the best administrators. Those at the top, he said, were selected for political considerations, while those at the bottom were chosen by the inflexible requirements of the civil service, which made it impossible to choose the most fit.

Alfred T. Any one who has never been in Europe, or more especially in England, for any length of time finds it difficult to realize the position that this American artist fills abroad. For many years Sargent has been considered the leading portrait painter of all Europe. His rogue in England has been approached by no artist since the days of Sir Joshua Reynolds and Gainsborough, and his reputation is such that for years he has been able to refuse to paint any person who did not appeal to him as a subject In the annual exhibitions at the Academy his portraits have usually had the place of honor. Indeed, he is regarded as the foremost figure to-day in the world of painting, and that distinction he has enjoyed for more than ten years. What Sargent gets for his paintings nowadays is not a matter of common

The story told of a famous Boston beauty who when she received her portrait from Sargent, took it to her room, studied it, and realizing that the artist had laid pare her true character on the canvas, bare her true character on the canvas, in a fit of rage cut out the face and tore it to shreds.

It was more than twenty years ago that Sargent was asked to try his hand at a decoration for the Boston Public Library. His own choice of a subject was given. To the astonishment of everybody he selected a religious subject for this theme. He has been regarded as exclusively the painter of fashion. He had never done any mural painting, yet when the first section of the great work was exhibited in London in 1894 the world stood up and admired. Now they have a whole gallery in the Boston Public Library named after him, the mural decoration of which is his work.

The painter has described his complete scheme as representing "The Triumph of Religion"—a mural decoration illustrating certain stages of Jewish and Christian history. The subject of the first portion is the confused struggle in the Jewish nation between Monotheism and Pantheism.

yesterday an amendment to the motor vehicle law providing that auto trucks carrying United States mail shall be subject to the restrictions and regulations imposed on all other vehicles, except fire engines and ambulances. If the ordinance, as now amended, is enforced, United States mail wagons will not be allowed to go through the city streets at an excessive rate of speed. The special committee on speed reguamendment was referred, reported back that it believed that under the police power the Aldermen had the right to make provisions of law necessary for the protection of human life, provided the provision be reasonable, and it recommended that the amendment be passed. At a public hearing held on the amendment last week Joseph Stewart, Second Assistant Postmaster General, appeared in behalf of the United States Government in opposition to the measure. some fifteen deaths this year, seven since Sept. 1. The number of motor mail wagons in use during the year averages less than 250 per day. On this basis, at least, one vehicle out of every eighteen is destroying a human life every year. The total number of motor vehicles in New York City is estimated at 55,000, and the number of deaths for the year 1913 is 230. Therefore, one vehicle out of every 230 kills a citizen, as against one out of eighteen mail wagons. The daily mileage of a mail wagon is undoubtedly greater than that of many other vehicles, which would lessen this percentage of fatalities to a certain degree. All things considered, the committee concludes that the United States mail wagons have killed and are killing a number of citizens far in excess of their ratio to other vehicles in the city.

Human Life More Important.

Human Life More Important.

The committee appreciates the efforts of the Post Office authorities to get the best and most economical mail service for the city. It also appreciates the fact that the great commercial interests of the city, and to a certain extent of the entire world, demand the best mail service possible. It believes, however, that the safety of human life is far more important than the dispatch of mails. For these reasons the committee believes that vehicles carrying United States mail must be subjected to rules and regulations commensurate with the public safety.

The committee believes that vehicles re-The committee believes that vehicles responding for emergency work in case of fire, accident, public disaster, or impending danger, should be given wider latitude in the restrictions under which they are compelled to travel upon the public thoroughfares, owing to the nature of their business and the conditions under which they respond to an alarm. Their missions being those of mercy, and their travel being attended with more than the average degree of alarm, the public is awakened to the fact of their presence. These conditions are not at all times present in the travels of mail-carrying vehicles.

Ziegler's Sister Asks for Commission in Fight Over $30,000,000 Estate. Florence Louise Brandt, sister of Will iam Ziegler, Jr., adopted son of the late William Ziegler, the baking powder manufacturer, in her fight for a share of the $30,000,000 Ziegler estate inherited by her brother, asked Supreme Court Justice Cohalan yesterday, through he lawyer, for a "written commission" to examine two witnesses, one being George can prove that when Mr. Ziegler adopt ed her brother and herself he made a ed her brother and herself he made an oral promise that he would make both of them his heirs in law.

John M. Bowers, attorney for William Ziegler, Jr., said that William Ziegler decided to adopt the two children of his half brother in 1896.

"The adoption," he said, "was accomplished, but in 1992 Florence decided that she did not wish to remain any longer the adopted daughter of William Ziegler, and had her adoption abrogated. In 1905 Mr. Ziegler died, and last July William Ziegler, Jr., attained his majority. In February his sister started proceedings to get a share of the estate, based on Mr. Ziegler's alleged oral promise that she and her brother were to share his estate at his death. It is easy to understand the motive her father and his friend, Dr. Price, would have in attempting to sustain such a theory."

Justice Cohalan asked that briefs be submitted by both sides and reserved decision.

TWO REMARKABLE PICTORIAL SECTIONS, one in three colors and the other produced by the wonderful new process known as rotogravure, will distinguish the CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, DEC. 7. The edition will be unique among newspaper publications. It will be sold out far ahead of time. The only way to get a copy is to place your order at once.

THE PROPHETS IN COLORS

These famous paintings by John S. Sargent are in the Boston Public Library. The frieze will be reproduced in the original colors, on heavy paper, suitable for framing, by the same process which was used when The Times issued Abbey's "Holy Grail" and the Morgan pictures. It will be equal to any colored art print ever offered by Christmas publications costing fifty cents and a dollar.

THE GIRL OF TO-DAY

Twenty-nine pictures of typical American girls, selected by seven noted artists after The Times had asked its readers to submit photographs, will fill this eight-page section. They will be reproduced by a new process known as rotogravure, which gives extraordinary results hitherto unknown in newspaper printing. The Girl of To-day Section will be the first eight-page American newspaper section produced by rotogravure. which will soon be used for all The Times's regular pictorial sections.

It was originally planned to select only twenty-nine from among the hundreds of photographs submitted to The Times as typical of the American girl. But the judges chose ninety as worthy of reproduction. So an additional rotogravure section will be issued on Sunday, Dec. 14, with the remaining sixty-one selections.

Christmas Number of The New York Times Sunday, Dec. 7, 1913

In issuing previous Special Editions The New York Times urged its readers to place their orders early, but thousands disregarded the warnings and failed to get the editions. The Christmas Number of this year (Sunday, Dec. 7, 1913,) will be sold out far in advance. The only way to get a copy is to order at once.

Diviner of Springs and Hidden Riches May Work Psychically. To the Editor of The New York Times:

The arrival in New York of Landrath von Uslar of Apenrade, the divining rod expert and friend of the Kaiser, gives occasion for noting that the public has on the divining rod and the ability of S., professor of physics in the University of Dublin, printed in the "Proceedings" of the Society for Psychical Re-Payne," and presenting "Hamlet." briefly enumerate these. First, the theory of conscious fraud is now given up by all impartial investigators. A list of those who have been enabled to use the rod successfully should be a sufficient answer to Among them I mention Lady Milbank; Mr. J. D. Enys, terest taken in this subject in England, F. G. The third theory put forward is that the dowser finds water because he is surface signs" of water, or metal, as case may be. Seeing these, he involuntarily bends the twig. This theory vas carefully examined by Prof. Barrett, and found to be totally unable to xplain the facts. Many of the dowsers were quite unread and unfamiliar with the subject. Most of the "amateur" dowsers know nothing of geology. Exeriments were also conducted in which the dowsers were compelled to walk over the ground blindfolded, their conclusions checked off by two or more dowsers working independently. periments were conducted in which the dowser was asked to find a piece of metal placed beneath one of several saucers. The twig invariably "dipped' over the right saucer! No knowledge of surface signs" would have sufficed to inform the dowser as to which saucer

SALVATION ARMY PIONEERS Endured Insult and Ridicule, Like Suffragists of To-day.

To the Editor of The New York Times: Having just read the article on the Sal ation Army and woman suffrage by Everett Wheeler and having lived at a time when at a time when women were given citizenship, it seems but right that a few actual facts should have a place in your paper which will dispel the fearful forebodings of those who listen to the "misguided creat-

I well remember some of the Salvationists being arrested for "disturbing the peace," 'frightening horses with their tambourines. and "exposing young women to dangers." Insulting epithets were shouted at them then just as those opposed to woman suffrage shouted at the marchers in Washington, and in this city a few years ago.

I lived in a town at the time the vot I lived in a town at the time the vote was given to women, and at the first election in which the women voted the women, combined with the decent men, elected decent men to office, and the town was changed from a "tough" town to a suitable place in which to bring up children. On the other hand, the scenes of gayety in Alexandria offer contrast and relief. The part that Miss Mary Garden had in making "Thais" popular is not lightly to be disregarded in considering the place of the opera in the repertory; nor the assistance rendered her by such artists as Messrs. Renaud and Dalmorès. There was intelligent striving on the part of the singers who carried the burden of the musical drama last evening. Mr. Kriedler as Athanael was deserving of much credit for his sincere and skillful impersonation, as well as for excellent singing. There were also excellences in Miss Ewell's Thals. The later part of it was better than the unregenerate portion, and yet if she did not wholly succeed in this it was not for lack of an anxious imitation of Miss Garden's manner, poses, gestures, and even, what was more serious, some of her vocal mannerisms. Mr. Bergman met reasonable expectations, not too high, as Nicias. Mr. Szendrei worked hard to get good results from the orchestra, which showed training, and certain instrumental solo effects were well played. Among these the violin solo in the "Meditation" did not hold a high place, though this interlude was repeated at the demand of the audience, as has so often been the case before.

The scenery, it was announced, was borrowed from the Boston Opera House, as the Metropolitan Opera House has never produced "Thais" and had none to lend. But it did not do much credit to the Boston Opera House, either in design or in color, and much of it seemed rather crude.

numbers by Beethoven comprised three of his smaller planoforte pieces, the Rondo in C. and two Bagatelles that rarely occupy the attention of planists in public, and one of his greatest and most difficult ones, the sonata Op. 106 in B flat, often called, because of the German word that he used in the title, the "Hammer-klavier" sonata.

Mr. Hoffman was in a poetic and introspective mood. The transition from the simple pieces to the great one was not abrupt. He played them with exquisite delicacy and refinement of sentinent, with a tone of shimmering gold, of infinite gradation in nuance of dynamics and color. The sonata, as he played it, was revealed in its true stature; it was a performance of supreme euphony, of subtly adjusted proportions of its greater outlines as well as of all the details of its structure; and it gave the impression of spontaneity, of an immediately personal utterance.

The President will probably arrive in this city on Saturday morning and leave for Washingon soon after the game ends. The Mexican situation is taking up much of his time, but he will lay aside his official duties long enough to see the game t Wilson is fond of football and baseball, having played both branches sport while at Princeton.

During the first half of the game the President will occupy a box on the Army side and in the second half he sit on the Navy side, probably as will sit on the Navv side, probably as the guest of Secretary of the Navv Daniels. The spectacle at the Polo Grounds at this game promises to be one of the most impressive ever seen at an athletic event in this city. The gold and lace of the Army and Navy officials and Diplomatic Corps will lend much splendor and color to the occasion.

Sion.

One of the most attractive features of the annual game between the two branches of the service is the drill of the cadets and midshipmen before the game. The perfectly drilled bodies of young men go through a long series of manoeuvres on the gridiron. The singing and cheering of both branches is usually better organized and more vociferous than the outburst of noise and melody at the big college games.

The New York club yesterday announced all the plans for the game and gave out an explanation of the entrances and the seating arrangements. The gates at the Polo Grounds will be opened at 11 o'clock, and the game will commence at 2 o'clock.

The Army will occupy the south side of the field and the Navy will be on the north side of the gridiron. The police arrangements will be the same as they were at the world's series games under Inspector Titus. It will be an idle task for the curious to go up to the grounds because no one will be allowed to pass up Eighth Avenue beyond 155th Street without a ticket.

The Army team will probably come here to-morrow or Friday and will have headquarters at the Hotel Astor. The Navy team will leave Annapolis to-morrow night and will stay at the Vanderbilt Hotel while in the city. Both hotels will have big crowds of Army and orbilt Hotel while in the city. Both otels will have big crowds of Army and Navy people.

The directions for spectators going to the Polo Grounds, as given out by the New York Club yesterday, are as fol-

NAVY INVITES MANY GUESTS. Cabinet Officers and Officers to Attend Football Game. Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 25 .- Though President Wilson has given only a tentative acceptance to the invitation extended him by the Naval Academy authorities. It is hoped that he will be at the Army-Navy football game on the Polo Grounds, New York. He has promised to be present unless prevented by of-ficial duties. No President but Roosewelt has seen an Army-Navy football game. Secretary of State Bryan is also expected to be present. Other cabinet officers who have made their arrangements to be present as guests of the Navy and who have been assigned hoxes are Secretary Danlels of the Navy, Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury and Attorney General McReynolds.

The naval authorities were somewhat surprised but pleased to receive a box. Other distinguished persons who will be in boxes on the Navy side are: Admiral Dewey, Rear Admirals Wainwright and Clark, Representative R. P. Dodson, Senator James O'Gorman, Gov. Goldsborough of Maryland, President Hibben of Princeton, and Col. R. M. Thompson. velt has seen an Army-Navy football of Princeton, and Col. R. M. Anompson.

There was another secret practice at the Naval Academy this afternoon. There was no regular practice game but there were short scrimmages designed to try out certain formations. The coaches are trying to bring a machine-like perfection in the execution of the plays and are giving final instructions in body blocking and putting opponents out of the play. These have been strong points in the play of the Navy team throughout the season.

Special to The New York Times. WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Driv-ing the men through a ten-minute scrimmage and winding up with a fast signal drill, Head Coach Daly of the Army team succeeded in injecting more fire and dash into the Cadets to-day than has been in evidence for some time. He was ably assisted in the drill by Coach
F. H. Yost, Michigan's "hurry up" man, and "Ham" Fish, Harvard's "00 Captain. These two coaches assisted Daly and his corps of gridiron advisers

In putting the cadets through a stiff pace, which continued until darkness crept over the Army's gridiron. The Army's practice to-day was most encouraging. The men went at their work with much vim and gusto, and before the drill was ended had mastered several new inventions that Yost introduced.

eral new inventions that Yost introduced.

Hodgson, Huston, and Benedict, the recently injured trio, were all out, but only the latter two participated in the rough work. Hodgson had a long punting drill. Jouett, who has been tried successively at quarter back and end on the scrubs, was shifted to Hodgson's place at left half on the regular to-day, and did well in the drill. Hobbs did the kicking for the scrubs. Merrill and Markoe were the ends, Wynne and Weyand the tackles, Jones and Huston guards, and McEwan centre. Prichard and Doe alternated at quarter, and Benedict, Hoge, and Jouett made up the back field. Except for Jouett, this is the most likely combination for the Navy battle, although there is an element of doubt concerning one of the line positions and one back field job.

Stiff Practice for Cornell Players

at Atlantic City. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 25.—
Favored with ideal football weather Cornell's sturdy gridiron warriors went through several hours' stiff signal practice at the Inlet Park here this afternoon for final work before the game with Pennsylvania Thanksgiving Day. The plays uncorked spelled trouble for the Quakers, and the Cornellian eleven the County of the National Horse Show with hunters and jumpers. The stallion in all probability will be used in the Dominion for breeding burposes. Special to The New York Times.

Brickley May Lead Harvard. Special to The New York Times. BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 25.—Harvard foot-ball players will not elect next year's Captain for some time yet. The choice will be tain for some time yet. The choice will be among Brickley, Hardwick, and Trumbull, all of whom will be seniors next Fall. Brickley is the logical man, however. He, has scored 245 points in his three years of football at Harvard, having made 34 field goals, 24 touchdowns, and 5 goals after touchdowns as a freshman and 'Varsity player. Trumbull is the most aggressive of all the candidates, but his election is not likely. Whoever is the Crimson leader next year will have the nucleus of a fine eleven. Only three of the man that started the Yale game Saturday will be lost by graduation. These are Hitchcock, Storer, and O'Brien.

Col. Townley of West Point Says

Sport Serves No Useful Purpose. With the near approach of the Army-Navy football game at the Polo Grounds Col. C. P. Townley, Superintendent of the West Point Academy, sounds a note of alarm in his annual report to the Adjutant General of the Army at Washington which followers of football fear may bring about the abandonment of the sport at West Point. Col. Townley calls attention to the large percentage of injuries in football as compare to other sports, and emphasizes the fact that "football serves no useful purpose in the physical development or fraining in the corps," but is simply an entertainment.

It is pointed out in the report that 75 per cent. of the injuries received by cadets are due to football, while not more than fifty of the 600 cadets engage in this sport. Col. Townley says the sport has no special value as a physical training aid to warrant its continuance. The discipline at West Point is very severe, and permanent injuries to cadets may result in their being declared unfit for active service. According to the report of the medical director, during the season of 1912 sixty-one cadets were injured, eleven injuries being of a character liable to cause future trouble. In his report Col. Townley says:

future trouble. In his report Col. Townley says:

"Attention is specially invited to that part of the following report submitted by the surgeon relating to football injuries. In considering that 75 per cent. of all injuries are due to football during its season it should be recalled that these come from but forty or fifty cadets who train and engage in this sport, while all other injuries come from the entire corps of over 600 cadets and are principally caused by work in the gymnasium, such as athletics, wrestling, boxing, &c., and from mounted drills in cavalry and field artillery. The game of polo in which first and second classmen engage also furnishes a few injuries.

Minds Will Play for Penn. PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—Fast signal drills constituted to-day's practice of the University of Pennsylvania football team at the Whitemarsh Country Club in preparation for the game with Cornell on Thankagiving Day. The fact that the Ithaca eleven is at Atlantic City seemed to be an added incentive for the Red and Blue players to go at a fast pace, and the men looked like sprinters as they dashed up and down the field. Minds, the star full back, who had been on the side lines because of an injury, was in the practice again to-day, and there is little doubt that he will be in the battle against Cornell. The Pennsylvania coaches are greatly pleased with the form of the team as a unit, and express confidence of a victory over their old-time rivals. PHILADELPHIA. Nov. 25.-Fast signa

WANTS FOOTBALL BARRED. ENGLISH CHAMPION

Freddie Welsh Leads in Seven Rounds of Bout with Brooklynite.

In the clinches Weish did his best work, but even at this style his punches were lacking in steam, and in the few outbursts of punching when he landed almost at will on Bloom the blows failed to slow up the champion. Bloom's weakness at infighting, or protecting himself at close range in the early rounds, resulted in his defeat. It was while the Brooklynite was backed against the ropes, with both hands held in front of his face, that the Briton did his most effective work. In the closing rounds Bloom showed a disposition to exchange punches in the clinches, and he gave as much as he received.

Welsh was entitled to seven of the ten rounds, and Bloom gained the honors in three. In the fourth Bloom kept Welsh off with a straight left to the face, and Freddle had no chance to do any infigriting, which had earned him the three preceding rounds. In the eighth Welsh appeared tired, and he let Bloom do all the leading. Bloom's punches did no damage, but he was entitled to the uneventful round, as Wolsh did little more than stay on the defensive. In the tenth Bloom cut loose punches did no damage, but he was entitled to the uneventful round, as Welsh, did little more than stay on the defensive. In the tenth Bloom cut loose with a display of punching power such as the previous rounds had not uncovered, and he led all the way. His blows jarred Welsh time and again, but were not forceful enough to floor the Englishman.

Outside of these three rounds Welsh's aggressiveness while he had Bloom backed into a corner or against the ropes gained him the honors. The lightning jabs and clever footwork of former but aversiones helped. and the Briton outgeneraled the Brook-lyn boy. In the centre of the ring Welsh did very little effective punching, but with Bloom on the ropes he worked both hands to head and body in a way that had the youngster bewildered. Both were farred a few times with straight punches to the Jaw, but neither went down, and at no time was either boxer in distress.

New Ends for Coach Thorpe. The announcement that Viviano and Carey, 'Varsity ends, and Curran and Brady, substitute ends, would be unable to play against Mount St. Mary's College eleven Thanksgivis at Atlantic City seemed to be an added incentive for the Red and Blue players to go at a fast pace, and the men looked like sprinters as they dashed up and down the field. Minds, the star full back, who had been on the side lines because of an injury, was in the practice again to-day, and there is little doubt that he will be in the battle against Cornell. The Pennsylvania coaches are greatly pleased with the form of the team as a unit, and express confidence of a victory over their old-time rivals.

The evening contest resulted in a victory for Dr. H. W. Hawley of Danbury over C. P. Matthews of Brooklyn by the score of 200 to 165 in fifty-eight innings. Dr. Hawley had a double high run of 23, which helped him considerably in running out his victory. One game will be played to-day. It will be in the afternoon, between Dr. T. W. Tuggle and George W. Spear. CHICAGO, Nov. 25 .- Joe . Tinker asserted co-night he would never be a player on the to-day. He said his release came as a sur-prise and he had no plans. Tinker regretted that he could not retain the management for another year, as he thought he could build up the team into a stronger aggregation. Tinker asserted he was released because as manager he refused to be a figurehead. He said it had been the practice of a Director or some man unknown to the players to watch them when they were off the field. When-he objected to this, opposition to him in-creased among the club's owners. Tinker said he expected to be traded, as he would not play with Cincinnati under any condition.

No Traffic on Broadway Can Stall This Motor That traffic jam at Times Square-none worse!

Haven't you often seen a driver try to get away quickly only to find that in his haste he had "killed" his motor? This has happened some time on every crowded street in New York. But it can't happen with the New Chalmers "Six."

Even if the gas should be accidentally cut off—you simply release the clutch. The electric starter speeds up the motor and keeps it running. The wonderful Chalmers-Entz starter is always on duty. With the release of the clutch, it goes to work at once whenever the engine speed drops below a certain point. It does this automatically, surely, without a hitch, and without a move from you. For it's always positively connected with the motor. And the Chalmers non-stallable motor-the biggest feature of automobile safety and convenience yet devised—is only one of many features that will make you enthusiastic when you see the Master "Six." Our claims for this car seem almost impossible. But we put it up to the car itself to prove them. You shall be the one to judge. Come and take the Chalmers Standard Road Test. Here is proof positive of our claims-and you will be under no obligation.

DEPENDABLE INCOME

Keeping uppermost in mind the important factors of safety and dependable income, how could you do better than to systematically accumulate sound investment bonds? Five hundred dol-lars so invested should earn $25 a year, $1,000 at least $50 a year, $5,000 not less than $250 a year, and larger sums in proportion. Sound investment bonds purchased now are practically certain to increase in value. FINANCIAL MARKETS

Trading Shows Renewed Life and Prices Advance - A Change in Sentiment.

The Stock Exchange did almost four times as much business yester-day as on Monday, and the market was strong nearly all day. You cannot dig a hole deeper than the earth; if you do you come out into the sunhine. Yet Wall Street had been inclined to look upon that impossibility as a feasible thing. On Monday, when trading had fallen to the lowest level in a quarter of a century, a longer period than most men now active in its affairs can remember the loings of Wall Street, there were few so far as to expect a progressive defallen, and despite the evidence of firmness which the latter had for some time been displaying.

Too much need not be inferred from yesterday's activity and strength, but they at least must serve to discountenance those who indulged in the extremes of pessimism which lately found reflection in Stock Ex-change sentiment. Yesterday's sharp reversal of market conditions did not appear in all respects spontaneous, but to a large extent it was so. Conditions were not such as to have invited a sudden inflow of orders from the public at large, and it is a fair assumption that traders' purchasers partly for the long account, but also partly for the short account, were the mainspring of yesterday's increased activity and forward movement in prices. Perhaps those who led in this movement were actuated by the feeling that the relative firmness of prices in a market in which practically all activity had ceased inlicated a position in which only a little effort was needed to turn prices upward. Or it may have been that ty to those who might adopt a constructive market attitude. The proposed currency measure and the in-crease in freight rates which the railroads are seeking are both matters for the country. Possibly, too, overnight consideration of the really rethe phenomenal credit trade balance which is being built up.

Whether or not these elements in the situation, and such change as has already been brought about in stock market sentiment bear further fruit in a continuance of the movement which was begun yesterday, considerable satisfaction can be taken in yesterday's Stock Exchange record. It has at least broken the continuity of the pessimism of such part of the financial community as bases its view of the present situation and of the outlook chiefly or solely on the state of the stock market. It is probably true that outside of Wall Street fewer people than ever relatively attach as much importance to the fluctuations of the stock market as was attributed to them in years past, but even outside of Wall Street a break in the lifelessness of the stock market can hardly be anything but a welcome occurrence. There was little new for Wall Street to discuss yesterday except its own change of mind as reflected in the stock market. Some previous tendencies, how-Dec. 1 disbursements, caused call money rates to advance to 4 per cent., although the ruling rate was only 2% per cent. On the other side of the money market balance sheet was recorded a further decline in discount rates at Berthe Imperial Bank of Germany. That institution gained over $4,500,000 gold and cash to a total of more than 100 and 10 800,000. Its cash holdings are $107,000,-000 larger than they were a year ago, while its circulation was greater by only $10,000,000. This great strength, compared with the bank's position at this time in 1912, and the progressive decline in the Berlin discount rate must be given considerable significance in forecasting the probabilities of the European money market for the balance of the year. At London discounts eased a little and the Bank of England obtained $4,500,000 of the South African gold arrivals. An advance in consols was one of the noteworthy features of the day's foreign markets. For ourselves we cannot expect to get through the preparations for the Dce. 1 payments quite as easily as we would have done in the absence of the Cana-dian demand for gold which has already taken close to $7,000,000 within a week. At the same time the chances still favor the passing of the December interest period with less inconvenience than was encountered at the first of November. A continuance of market conditions such as prevailed yesterday would soon increase Wall Street's interest in the money market. Of late that interest has been almost entirely academic because so little money was being employed for current stock market operations. So little, in fact, that no more unlikely time could have been chosen for the latest Washington references to the fostering of speculation by the funds held by banks in New York City. That reference was made at the outset of the Senate debate on the currency bill which deals with a proposal of law to which Wall Street will no doubt give increasing attention as the time approaches when action will be taken on this most important matter. Meanwhile the attention of a good many is being directed toward Washington in anticipation of what the President will have to say in his annual message to Congress. A variety of reports evidently based on preconceived conceptions of what the President is likely to say are making their appearance in the financial district. Probably the matter in which most interest is likely to be shown by the financial community is what the President will have to say on the question of further corporation legislation. It would like very much to have some more definite intimation than it has yet received as to just how extensive and how radical a programme for this sort of legislation will be mapped out. outset of the Senate debate on the cur-

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Pendulum Swings Back. While yesterday's trading was not in large volume; measured by old standards of activity, it was so much ahead pression which was everywhere eviden on Monday lifted before the close of the first hour. The spectacle of Hop crushed to earth by declining prices and revivified twenty-four hours late by a spurt of activity on the bull side is old, but it is always interesting.

The Mexican Problem. If President Huerta of Mexico would depart for Europe, or go down in a crushing defeat before the rebel forces, the problem of financing the National Railways of Mexico's approaching interest payments would be greatly sim plified. With political conditions as they are, making possible the operation who saw anything better in sight for of only about half of the company's a long time to come. Some even went mileage, it is a serious problem. There so far as to expect a progressive decline in trading and in prices, notwithstanding the abnormally small total to which the former had already other of more than $2,500,000 on mortgage bonds a month later.

From returns made to Dow, Jones & Co. it appears that in spite of the clamor against trusts and large corporations the number of small stockholders is steadily increasing. Commercial Paper Erratic.

Commercial paper brokers say their business has been subjected since the 1st of November to unusual irregularity. There have been days when there was plenty of paper to sell and the banks were willing to take considerable offerings. On other days entire hours would pass without a single transaction or an inquiry. >  Activity Close After Dullness.

The overnight change of sentiment stocks, as represented in a much greater volume of transactions resterday than on Monday, was not unexpected by the older members of the Wall Street community. The records of former days of meagre trading goes to show that frequently substantial business has developed on the heels of exceptional dullness. Last July the smallest total of shares dealt in for seventeen years was followed by a 300,000share session three days later, and within a month-during the vacation season, too-trading had worked up to better than 400,000 shares a day. Stock Exchange members of an analytical turn of mind said yesterday that today's business would indicate whether they and their colleagues would really be in a mood to give thanks on Thanksgiving Day. They believed that the extent of trading in a session preceding a holiday would, under existing circumstances, show definitely whether interest ever, were emphasized by the day's appeared to be on Monday. mining engineer, formerly in the Old Deminion's employ. In the course of the suit, which was tried in Chancery Chambers in Newark, Hyanis was charged with having instituted the litisation in the interest of Albert S. Bigelow of Boston, from whom the large fund out of which it was proposed to pay the dividend came. Bigelow and the late Leonard Lewisohn of New York were charged with having made large secret profits out of the promotion of the Old Dominion Company, and because of diverse citizenship Lewischn was sued in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York to compel restitution, and Bigelow in the courts of Massachusetts.

While the bill against Lewischn was eventually dismissed, the suit against Rigelow was carried to a successful issue, with the result that the Old Dominion Company now has so-called "segregated assets" amounting to approximately $2,500,000, representing proceeds of the Bigelow decrees.

graph to The New York Times. LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 26 .- The Times in its City article this morning says: "Money was much wanted yester day, but the supply was rather less restricted, and it was not found necessary to apply to the Bank for assistance. Four and three-fourths per cent. was frequently paid for short fixtures.

"Discount rates were easier, that for three months' bills falling 1-16 per cent., owing chiefly to the probability that the Bank will receive nearly £1,-000.000 in South African bar gold.

"After the preliminary arrangements in connection with the carryover had been finished the tone of the stock markets became distinctly firmer and in most departments, especially the home railway market, business showed distinct signs of broadening. Outstanding features were buoyancy in home railway stocks and a further advance in gilt-edged BUFFALO, ROCHESTER & PITTSRI

Mexican Railway stocks also rore sharply, the carry-over disclosing a shortage of stock, and in the foreign market, which showed strength, there was some keen buying of Chinese scrip. In the late dealings Wall Street also responded to the firmness of the markets on this side so that American shares closed with a general advance and Grand Trunk stocks shared in the general improvement, the upward movement being assisted by the appearance of satisfactory traffic returns.

PROTESTS LOWEST BIDDER. of the Interstate Commerce act in mis

A protest was made yesterday against the Public Service Commission's award of the contract for the construction of Section 2 of the New Utrecht Avenue, Brooklyn, elevated line to the lowest bidder. This was the firm of Post & McCord, Incorporated, which offered to do the work for $1,672,190.

The next firm to it was the Cooper & Evans Company, which bid $1,692,722.50. This concern has received the construction contract for one of the sections of the new Queens elevated lines, and has been making good progress with its work. Consequently it urged that, considering the closeness of the bids, it should receive the New Utrecht Avenue contract also, and in support of this it alleged that Post & McCord, while experienced in the work of steel construction, lacked experience in the difficult job of putting in the foundations.

The protest was heard by one of the Commissioners and Chief Engineer Craven. The latter pointed out that 90 per cent. of the work on the New Utrecht Avenue line was steel construction, for which Post & McCord were well qualified by experience. So he recommended the acceptance of the lowest bidder. The commission acted on Mr. Craven's advice and awarded the contract to Post & McCord.

Acklerdan of 564 Broadway admitted before Judge Hunt in the Federal District Court that they shipped artificial flowers as "millinery." They were fined $200. Louis Lekfowitz admitted that he called leather goods "scrap leather." He was fined $500.

These cases were brought as part of the campaign now being carried on by William I. Lloyd, Special Agent of the Interstate Commerce Commission, against firms which have made such misbranding a practice.

Public Service Commission to-day granted the application of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad for per-mission to issue $470,000,000 of refunding bonds to take up the entire indebtedness of the system and make a single mortgage. The bonds are to bear interest not to exceed 6 per cent, to run until 2014, and to cover all stock issues, franchises, and equipment on the 10,000 miles of the St. Paul system. The company's statement shows an aggregate of $316,428,200 in outstanding bonds. The filing of the mortgage alone cost $10,000.

work may be done.

"If this plan can be carried out," said Supt. W. V. King of the Exchange yesterday, "and there is not much doubt but that all difficulties can be met and overcome, it will be a great boon to the trade. It will prevent local corners and manipulation of the market, and it will give to the owners of cotton a reliable guarantee of the grades, thus making it more salable to mills at home, and also for export to any part of the world. It will also make cotton one of the safest collaterals to loan money on, because the bank or banker will know by the warehouse receipt and the guarantee of grade that the cotton is safely stored in an approved warehouse and what its market value is.

"A special committee has been directed by the Board of Managers to study this subject and work out a plan to lay before the Exchange by which this system can be extended. The Chamber of Commerce of Columbia, S. C., realizing what a great benefit this will be to all concerned, has already sent a deputation to the New York Cotton Exchange to assure them of its cordial approval and earnest wish to co-operate in putting into effect such a beneficial pfan."

Mr. King pointed out that with the consequent increase of business in contracts, it has become difficult to get a large enough stock of cotton in one place to answer the requirements of the trade. The elimination of corners in the commodity is expected to result from the availability of a great deal of cotton in the active seasons of trading.

So long a time had elapsed between the Government's announcement that a suit would be entered and the filing of this suit that some members of the trade thought the matter had been shelved. In view of this the suit in question does look like misdirected energy.

It is a matter of serious moment to the jewelry jobber that the Government to the jewelry jobber that the Government has taken the arbitrary position of telling, him where he must buy his goods or get into serious legal difficulties. The prayer of the Government in the suit just entered does not say this in so many words, but the spirit of the prayer really can be interpreted in no other way. The Government alleges a violation of the Sherman act in that a number of jobbers have made an agreement other than the jobber. I will grant that this is technically wrong under the Sherman act, but I maintain that from a moral and business point of view the contribution. "In actual practice this is the way the above provision would work out: A jewelry jobber, being enjoined individually not to restrain trade in the manner outlined heretofore, either directly or indirectly, finds one day that a certain manufacturer from whom he buys goods is selling to the cream of the retail trade. He decides not to buy from him any more. This he has a legal right to do, and when that manufacturer's salesman visits the jobber to solicit an order, he has a right to tell him that he won't buy anything. But, under the injunction, the jobber has no right to tell the salesman why he won't buy. In doing so he would violate the injunction by indirectly communicating with the manufacturer to the effect that the lost business was due to the manufacturer's selling to the retailers, and in this way indi-Considerable criticism is heard in local jewelry circles of the recent action

Collusion Might Be Charged. "It might also happen that three or four jobbers would have salesmen in Albany on the same day, and they salesman who was drumming the retail stores for business. Without seeing each other, or without knowing that they had all seen the manufacturer's agent, these salesmen might write to their employers and tell them what they saw. Each jobber, then, without knowledge of what the other jobbers were doing, would end his account with that manufacturer. Wouldn't it be easy under those conditions for the manufacture to charge collusion and have those conditions for the manufacturer to charge collusion and have the jobbers prosecuted for violating the injunction of the Government? The jobbers would be legally and morally guiltless, but they would have a hard and expensive time proving it, if at all."

Many protest cases affecting New York importers will be heard by the United States Court of Customs Appeals at the session opening Dec. 2. This will be the last session of the court this year, and it is expected that much important litigation arising under the old tariff will be heard and disposed of in order to clear the calendars in anticipation of the important questions to come before the court under the new law. The cases to be tried cover a wide variety of merchandise.

New Pencil-Sharpener on Market.
The soiled fingers that result from pencil sharpening are, it is said, eliminated by a new device called a "deposit pencil pointer," which was recently put on the market. It is a nickel-plated tool, slightly larger than a pocket knife, and the manufacturers say that it sharpens pencils of any size or of any kind of lead without breaking the point of soiling the hands. The blade of the device cuts with the grain, and may be adjusted easily for light or heavy scutting. It may be resharpened, if desired. North Side Coach and Auto Co.—L. Kaigstein, $200.

WALL STREET

For fifteen years I have sold bonds and other securities for bond and brokerage houses on "The Street," and have averaged $10,000 a year from it, BUT I believe at the present time there is more money and a bigger future for an able salesman in the mercantile or manufacturing field. For instance, isn't there some concern needing an able man, with large finantial experience, to obtain more capital for its expansion? Nothing "down and out," it must bear the strictest investigation. I have a large and valuable clientele—people to whom I have sold securities in the past—to whom I can go successfully with any legitimate proposition. Do you know any one who could use my knowledge, my services, my associations to advantage? I am seeking a good connection. Address Winner, A 16 Times.

Porto Rico

It is not merely the climate that makes a visit to Porto Rico so memorable, nor the wonderful richness of scenery and soil, but added to all these the succession of fascinating scenes that this lovely island affords.

You can take one of our splendidly equipped steamers any Saturday from New York, and in less than five days you are at San Juan.

Then follow dreamy days of discovery ashore, with visits to the Plaza, the Casa Blanca, the old Spanish Cathedral, where Ponce de Leon's bones are supposed to be entombed; the Obispado, or Bishop's Palace, the Alcaldia and many other fascinating places associated with early Spanish legends.

And at nightfall, when you return to wander through terraces and hanging gardens overlooking the sea, the music of a distant military band will echo the music in your heart as you thrill with the romance of the scene. New York to San Juan $45.00 and up.

adoption of such a plan, it is realized that it is a matter in which every subway traveler is more or less concerned So the importance of the question is to be brought to the attention of all New Yorkers, in whatever neighborhood they

sthing to do."

Similar views were expressed yesterday by Robert Goelet. He said that he was in the most hearty sympathy with the idea of placing the B. R. T. express station under Broadway, running north from Forty-second Street, as he was especially impressed with the importance of providing some means of connecting the two great new subway systems. Thus, Mr. Goelet said, he believed that the interests of the trade and travel of the city would best be served. Moreover, he put no confidence in the possibility of effecting any change in the course of the citys traffic by the mere device of placing the B. R. T. express station at the north end of Times press station at the north end of Times ess station at the north end of times guare. Mr. Goelet believes that the ngestion of traffic, of which some of e Commissioners who have opposed e modification of their riginal tentare plans have expressed themselves ruid, can be relieved best by creating centre especially to deal with it at our properties of the public demands.

Tunless the Public Service Commission Sees its way to modify its plans for the disintegration of the traffic of the new subways by separating the B. R. Although those who have property and business interests near Forty-second Street and Broadway naturally are especially alive to the misfortune of the adoption of such a plan, it is realized that it is a matter in which every subway traveler is more or less concerned.
